Guiso Gallisay v. Italy

22.12.2009 (judgment on just satisfaction)

Question of the criteria for calculation of just satisfaction in constructive expropriation cases.

The Court changed its criteria and now no longer takes into account the value of public works constructed on expropriated land.

Lautsi v. Italy

18.03.2011

The case concerned the presence of crucifixes in State-school classrooms in Italy.

No violation of Article 2 of Protocol No. 1 \(right to education\).

The Court held in particular that the question of religious symbols in classrooms was, in principle, a matter falling within the margin of appreciation of the State - particularly as there was no European consensus as regards that question - provided that decisions in that area did not lead to a form of indoctrination. The fact that crucifixes in State-school classrooms in Italy conferred on the country's majority religion predominant visibility in the school environment was not in itself sufficient to denote a process of indoctrination. Moreover, the presence of crucifixes was not associated with compulsory teaching about Christianity; and there was nothing to suggest that the authorities were intolerant of pupils who believed in other religions, were non-believers or who held non-religious philosophical convictions. Lastly, Ms Lautsi had retained her right as a parent to enlighten and advise her children and to guide them on a path in line with her own philosophical convictions.

Giuliani and Gaggio v. Italy

24.03.2011

Death of demonstrator in clashes between anti-globalisation protesters and law-enforcement officers during 2001 G8 summit in Genoa.

No violation of Article 2 \(right to life\) concerning four different complaints: use of lethal force; legislative framework governing the use of lethal force / weapons issued to the law-enforcement agencies at the G8; organisation of the policing operations at the G8; alleged lack of an effective investigation.

No violation of Article 13 \(right to an effective remedy\). No violation of Article 38 \(adversarial examination of the case\).

Scoppola v. Italy \(n° 3\)

22.05.2012

The case concerned the applicant's disenfranchisement following his criminal conviction.

No violation of Article 3 of Protocol No. 1 \(right to free elections\)

The Court found that the disenfranchisement of convicted prisoners provided for under Italian law was not like the general, automatic, indiscriminate measure that led it to find a violation of Article 3 of Protocol No. 1 in the Hirst \(no. 2\) v. the United Kingdom case. Italian law took care to adapt the measure to the particular circumstances of a case, particularly the length of the sentence.

Centro Europa 7 S.R.L. v. Italy

07.06.2012

The case concerned an Italian TV company's inability to broadcast, despite having a broadcasting licence, because no television frequencies were allocated to it.

Violation of Article 10 (freedom of expression and information)

Violation of Article 1 of Protocol No. 1 (protection of property)

Khlaifia and Others v. Italy

15.12.2016

The case concerned the holding, in a reception centre on the island of Lampedusa then on ships in Palermo harbour (Sicily), of irregular migrants who arrived in Italy in 2011 following the "Arab Spring" events in their country, and their subsequent removal to Tunisia.

Violation of Article 5 § 1 (right to liberty and security)

Violation of Article 5 § 2 (right to be informed promptly of the reasons for deprivation of liberty)

Violation of Article 5 § 4 (right to a speedy decision on the lawfulness of detention)

No violation of Article 3 (prohibition of inhuman or degrading treatment) as regards the conditions in the Lampedusa reception centre

No violation of Article 3 as regards the conditions on the ships in Palermo harbour

No violation of Article 4 of Protocol No. 4 to the Convention (prohibition of collective expulsion of aliens)

Violation of Article 13 (right to an effective remedy) taken together with Article 3

No violation of Article 13 taken together with Article 4 of Protocol No. 4

de Tommaso v. Italy

23.02.2017

The case concerned preventive measures imposed for a duration of two years on the applicant, who complained of a violation of Article 5 (right to liberty and security),

Article 6 § 1 (right to a fair hearing) and Article 13 (right to an effective remedy) of the Convention and Article 2 of Protocol No. 4 (freedom of movement) on the Convention.

Violation of Article 2 of Protocol No. 4 on account of the lack of foreseeability of the relevant Act

Cases concerning the right to life (Article 2)

Violations of Article 2

G.N. and Others v. Italy (no. 43134/05)

01.12.2009

Difference in treatment among persons infected by transfusion or administration of blood products.

Maiorano and Others v. Italy

15.12.2009

Applicants' relative was brutally murdered by a repeat offender who had been granted day release.

The Court found that the judicial authorities had been negligent, not having taken due account of the criminal's dangerousness.

Alikaj and Others v. Italy

29.03.2011

Death of a young man who was shot by a police officer when he was being pursued by the police after resisting arrest.

Talpis v. Italy

02.03.2017

The application concerned, in particular, the alleged failure by the Respondent State to provide protection and support to the applicant following violence inflicted by her husband, which ended with the murder of the applicant's son and the attempted murder of the applicant.

Cases concerning prohibition of inhuman or degrading treatment (Article 3)

Violations of Article 3

Ben Khemais v. Italy

24.02.2009

Deportation of a Tunisian national suspected of being involved in Islamist terrorism despite the Court's indication to the Italian Government (under Rule 39 of the Rules of Court) that the order should be stayed pending its decision on the merits.

Sulejmanovic v. Italy

16.07.2009

The case concerned prison overcrowding.

Toumi v. Italy

05.04.2011

Removal of a terrorist from Italy to Tunisia notwithstanding the Court's indications and the risk of ill-treatment (see also Grand Chamber judgment Saadi v. Italy).

Torregiani and Others v. Italy

08.01.2013

The case concerned overcrowding in prisons in Italy.

The Court decided to apply the pilot-judgment procedure in view of the growing number of persons potentially concerned in Italy and of the judgments finding a violation liable to result from the applications in question.

Following up on Torregiani case, the Court received more than 4,200 similar applications which were declared inadmissible or struck out.

Contrada (No. 2) v. Italy

11.02.2014

The case concerned the authorities' repeated refusal of a prisoner's requests for a stay of execution of his sentence or for the sentence to be converted to house arrest on account of his numerous health problems.

Cestaro v. Italy

07.04.2015

The case concerned events which occurred at the end of the G8 summit in Genoa in July 2001, in a school made available by the municipal authorities to be used as a night shelter by demonstrators. An anti-riot police unit entered the building around midnight to carry out a search, leading to acts of violence.

The Court found that there had been a violation of Article 3 of the Convention on account of ill-treatment sustained by Mr Cestaro and of inadequate criminal legislation concerning the punishment of acts of torture which was not an effective deterrent to prevent the repetition of such acts.

After emphasising the structural nature of the problem, the Court pointed out that, as regards the remedial measures to be taken, the State's positive obligations under Article 3 might include the duty to introduce a properly adapted legal framework, including, in particular, effective criminal-law provisions.

Nasr and Ghali v. Italy

23.02.2016

The case concerned an instance of extrajudicial transfer (or "extraordinary rendition"), namely the abduction by CIA agents, with the cooperation of Italian officials, of the Egyptian imam Abu Omar, who had been granted political asylum in Italy, and his subsequent transfer to Egypt, where he was held in secret for several months.

In the present case the Court held that the legitimate principle of "State secrecy" had clearly been applied by the Italian executive in order to ensure that those responsible did not have to answer for their actions. The investigation and trial had not led to the punishment of those responsible, who had therefore ultimately been granted impunity.

Bartesaghi Gallo and Others v. Italy

22.06.2017

The case concerned the ill-treatment to which 42 demonstrators were subjected by police officers inside a school, in the context of an anti-globalisation demonstration organised to coincide with the 27th summit of the eight major industrialised countries (G8).

Blair and Others v. Italy

Azzolina and Others v. Italy

26.10.2017

The cases concerned incidents following the G8 Summit in Genoa in 2001, when demonstrators were subjected to violence by law-enforcement officers while in detention. The applicants alleged that they had been subjected to torture and complained that the investigation by the domestic courts had been ineffective, in particular because the statute of limitations had been applied to virtually all the acts committed and because a number of those convicted had been granted a remission of their sentence.

Cirino and Renne v. Italy

26.10.2017

The case concerned the complaint by two detainees that in December 2004 they were ill-treated by prison officers of the Asti Correctional Facility, and that those responsible were not appropriately punished.

The Court held that the ill-treatment inflicted on the applicants – which had been deliberate and carried out in a premeditated and organised manner while they were in the custody of prison officers – had amounted to torture.

V.C. v. Italy \(no. 54227/14\)

01.02.2018

The case concerned a person who, as a minor suffering from alcohol and drug addiction, had been the victim of a child prostitution ring and gang rape. She complained that the Italian authorities had not taken all the necessary steps to protect her as a minor and the victim of a prostitution ring.

Cases concerning the right to liberty and security (Article 5)

Violation of Article 5

Seferovic v. Italy

08.02.2011

Detention pending deportation of a woman who had recently given birth to a child who died at the hospital, despite the fact that Italian law prohibited the deportation of a woman within six months of giving birth.

Gallardo Sanchez v. Italy

24.03.2015

The case concerned the excessive length of a Venezuelan national's detention in Italy with a view to his extradition to Greece.

Richmond Yaw and Others v. Italy

06.10.2016

The case concerned four Ghanaian nationals. They were placed in detention with a view to their removal from the country.

Cases concerning Article 6

Right of access to a court

Violations of Article 6 § 1

Guadagnino v. Italy and France

18.01.2011

Italian courts refused to hear industrial disputes concerning an employee of the French school in Rome.

De Luca v. Italy and Pennino v. Italy

24.09.2013

The two cases concerned the impossibility for the applicants to have a final judgment enforced in order to recover money owed to them by a municipal authority which had become insolvent.

Right to a fair trial

Violations of Article 6 § 1

Cordova v. Italy

30.01.2003

Maggio and Others v. Italy

31.05.2011

Re-adjustment of pensions of Italians who worked abroad.

Agrati and Others v. Italy

07.06.2011

The applicants were 125 Italian nationals who complained about the retrospective application of a new law to ongoing judicial proceedings, on the calculation of their length of service as civil servants.

Arras and Others v. Italy

14.02.2012

The case concerned legislative amendments which affected pending civil proceedings the applicants had brought concerning their pension adjustments. The applicants were pensioners and former employees of the Banco Di Napoli, a banking group which was originally public and was later privatised.

M.C. and Others v. Italy \(no. 5376/11\)

03.09.2013 – Pilot judgment¹

The case concerned the fact that it was impossible for 162 Italian nationals to obtain an annual adjustment of the supplementary part of a compensation allowance paid to them following accidental contamination as a result of blood transfusions or the administration of blood derivatives.

The Court held that the Government's enactment of the emergency legislative decree, which ruled on the disputed issue of adjustment of the supplementary part of the allowance, had infringed the principle of the rule of law and the applicants' right to a fair hearing, had imposed "an abnormal and excessive burden" on them and, lastly, had

Dhahbi v. Italy

08.04.2014

The case concerned the inability of an immigrant worker of Tunisian origin to obtain payment from the Italian public authorities of a family allowance under the association agreement between the European Union (EU) and Tunisia (Euro-Mediterranean Agreement).

Azienda Agricola Silverfunghi S.A.S. and Others v. Italy

24.06.2014

The case concerned proceedings before the Italian courts brought by a number of Italian agricultural companies based on their possible entitlement to a two-fold reduction of social security contributions. Pending these proceedings the Italian legislator passed a new retrospective law which determined that their benefits would be calculated alternatively, and not cumulatively.

Lorefice v. Italy

29.06.2017

The case concerned Mr Lorefice's complaint concerning the fairness of criminal proceedings which had resulted in his conviction by a court of appeal.

No violation of Article 6 § 1

Trevisanato v. Italy

15.09.2016

The case concerned the inadmissibility of an appeal to the Court of Cassation for failure to formulate a point of law (quesito di diritto) in a satisfactory and appropriate manner.

Right to a fair hearing within a reasonable time

Grande Stevens and Others v. Italy

04.03.2014

The case concerned the applicants' appeal against the administrative penalty imposed on them by the Italian Companies and Stock Exchange Commission (hereafter "Consob"²) and the criminal proceedings to which they are currently subject after having been accused of market manipulation in the context of a financial operation involving the car manufacturer FIAT.

² "Consob" is a Commission charged, in particular, with protecting investors and ensuring the transparency and development of the stock markets.

Violation of Article 6 § 1

No violation of Article 6 § 3 \(a\) \(right to be informed promptly of the accusation\) and \(c\) \(right to the assistance of a lawyer\) in respect of Mr Grande Stevens

No violation of Article 1 of Protocol No. 1 \(protection of property\)

Violation of Article 4 of Protocol No. 7 \(right not to be tried or punished twice\)

The Court also held that the respondent State was to ensure that the new criminal proceedings brought against the applicants, in violation of Article 4 of Protocol No. 7, which, according to the most recent information received, were still pending in respect of Mr Gabietti and Mr Grande Stevens, were closed as rapidly as possible.

Cafagna v. Italy

12.10.2017

The case concerned the applicant's conviction on the basis of a statement made by an individual who claimed to have been assaulted by him but who did not give evidence at the hearing.

Violation of Article 6 § 1

Violation of Article 6 § 3 \(d\) \(right to examine witnesses\)

Cipolletta v. Italy

11.01.2017

The case concerned the length of "administrative liquidation" proceedings.

Violation of Article 6 § 1

Violation of Article 13 \(right to an effective remedy\)

Excessive length of proceedings, delay in payment of "Pinto" compensation

Simaldone v. Italy

31.03.2009

Delay in payment of compensation awarded under "Pinto Act".

Violation of Article 6 § 1 \(right to a fair hearing within a reasonable time\) and Article 1 of Protocol No. 1 \(protection of property\)

The judgment referred to a growing number of applications concerning delayed payment of "Pinto" compensation.

Gaglione and Others v. Italy

21.12.2010

Delay by the Italian authorities in paying compensation in 475 "Pinto" applications (applications lodged to complain of the length of civil proceedings) – a delay of at least 19 months in 65% of the applications.

Violation of Article 6 § 1 \(enforcement of judicial decisions within a reasonable time\); violation of Article 1 of Protocol No. 1 \(protection of property\)

The Court observed a widespread problem relating to the enforcement of Pinto decisions in Italy (at 7 December 2010, more than 3,900 applications concerning, among other things, delays in paying compensation under the Pinto Act were pending before the Court). It found that general measures were required to remedy malfunctioning of "Pinto" applications.

It disagreed with the assertion that the applicants had not suffered a significant disadvantage and dismissed for the first time a request for application of the new admissibility criterion introduced by Protocol No. 14 (no significant disadvantage).

Cases dealing with Article 7 (no punishment without law)

Sud fondi Srl and Others v. Italy

20.01.2009

Court-ordered confiscation of property following illegal development on a protected site ("Punta Perrotta"), although the Court of Cassation, in the criminal proceedings, had found the landowners and their representatives to have committed an "inevitable and excusable error".

Violation of Article 7

Contrada v. Italy \(no. 3\)

14.04.2015

The case concerned the issue of whether the actions for which the applicant was convicted and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment constituted a criminal offence at the time when they were committed.

Violation of Article 7

The Court held that the offence of "aiding and abetting a mafia-type organisation from the outside" had resulted from a development in the case-law which had begun toward the end of the 1980s and was consolidated in 1994, and that it was not therefore sufficiently clear and foreseeable for Mr Contrada at the time of the events in respect of which he was charged (1979-1988).

Cases concerning the right to respect for private and family life (Article 8)

Violations of Article 8

Moretti and Benedetti v. Italy

“Dublin Regulation”³

Mohammed Hussein v. the Netherlands and Italy

02.04.2013

The case concerned a Somali asylum seeker who claimed in particular that she and her two young children would be subjected to ill-treatment if transferred from the Netherlands to Italy under the Dublin Regulation.

Application declared inadmissible as manifestly ill-founded.

The Court found in particular that, if returned to Italy, the future prospects of Ms Mohammed Hussein and her two children did not disclose a sufficiently real and imminent risk of hardship severe enough to fall within the scope of Article 3.

Sharifi and Others v. Italy and Greece

21.10.2014

The case concerned 32 Afghan nationals, two Sudanese nationals and one Eritrean national, who alleged, in particular that they had entered Italy illegally from Greece and been returned to that country immediately, with the fear of subsequent deportation to their respective countries of origin, where they faced the risk of death, torture or inhuman or degrading treatment. The Court held, concerning four of the applicants, Reza Karimi, Yasir Zaidi, Mozamil Azimi and Najeeb Heideri (also known as Nagib Haidari), who had maintained regular contact with their lawyer in the proceedings before the Court, that there had been:

a violation by Greece of Article 13 (right to an effective remedy) combined with Article 3 (prohibition of inhuman or regarding treatment) on account of the lack of access to the asylum procedure for the above-named applicants and the risk of deportation to Afghanistan, where they were likely to be subjected to ill-treatment

³ The “Dublin” system serves to determine which European Union (EU) Member State is responsible for examining an asylum application lodged in one of the Member States by a third-country national.

The Dublin Regulation establishes the principle that only one Member State is responsible for examining an asylum application. The objective is to avoid asylum seekers from being sent from one country to another, and also to prevent abuse of the system by the submission of several applications for asylum by one person.

a violation by Italy of Article 4 of Protocol No. 4 (prohibition of collective expulsion of aliens)

a violation by Italy of Article 3, as the Italian authorities, by returning these applicants to Greece had exposed them to the risks arising from the shortcomings in that country’s asylum procedure;

a violation by Italy of Article 13 combined with Article 3 of the Convention and Article 4 of Protocol No. 4 on account of the lack of access to the asylum procedure or to any other remedy in the port of Ancona

Francesco Cordella and Others v. Italy (no. 54414/13) and Lina Ambrogi Melle and Others v. Italy (no. 54264/15)

Cases communicated to the parties in April 2016. These applications concern the pollutant emissions from the Ilva steelworks in the city of Taranto. The applicants live (or lived) in the city or the surrounding area. The Ilva plant is the largest steelworks in Europe, and has been the focus of a long-running debate about the effects of its emissions on the environment and the health of the local population.

Relying on Articles 2 (right to life) and 8 (right to respect for private and family life) of the Convention, the applicants complain that the State failed to take all the necessary legal, regulatory and public information measures to protect the environment and the local residents' health. Under Article 13 (right to an effective remedy) of the Convention, they also complain that they have no effective domestic remedy in respect of those grievances.

Amanda Marie Knox v. Italy (no. 76577/13)

Case communicated to the parties in April 2016. This case concerns criminal proceedings in which Ms Knox was found guilty of making a false accusation. The offending statements were taken while she was being questioned in the context of criminal proceedings for the murder and sexual assault of her flatmate. The applicant was accused of implicating another person whom she knew to be innocent.

Ms Knox alleges that the criminal proceedings in which she was convicted were unfair, relying on Article 6 §§ 1 and 3 (a) (right to a fair trial – right to be informed promptly of the charge), (c) (right to legal assistance), (e) (right to assistance from an interpreter), Article 3 (prohibition of inhuman and degrading treatment) and Article 8 (right to respect for private and family life) of the Convention.

Barahona Guachamin and 8 other cases v. Italy (nos. 33295/15)

Cases communicated to the parties in May 2016. These applications concern the evacuation of the applicants and the demolition of their homes, which had been built illegally on public land.

Relying on Articles 6 (right to a fair hearing), 8 (right to respect for private and family life) and 13 (right to an effective remedy) of the Convention, the applicants complain of a violation of their right to a court, alleging that the demolition of their homes and the destruction of their possessions infringed their right to respect for their private and family life and home and that no effective remedy is available in respect of their allegations. Relying on Article 1 of Protocol No. 1 (protection of property) to the Convention, the applicants allege a violation of their right to the peaceful enjoyment of their possessions as a result of the demolition of the buildings and the loss of the items inside them.

Provenzano v. Italy (no. 55080/13)

Case communicated to the parties in July 2016. The case concerns the applicant's placement under the special prison regime provided for by section 41 bis of the Prison Administration Act, owing to his numerous convictions for membership of a mafia-type criminal organization. Mr Provenzano complains that he was subjected to treatment contrary to Article 3 of the Convention (prohibition of inhuman or degrading treatment) on account of his continued detention under the section 41 bis regime in spite of his state of health.

Miniscalco v. Italy (no. 55093/13)

Case communicated to the parties in August 2016.

In a decision of 27 February 2013, upheld by the Consiglio di Stato on 6 February 2013, the Molise Central Bureau for Regional Elections excluded the applicant from the list of candidates for the regional elections of 24 and 25 February 2013, under Article 7 of Decree no. 235/2012, on account of a final judgment convicting the applicant, handed down prior to the entry into force of the provision in question.

Mr Miniscalco relies on Article 7 of the Convention (no punishment without law), and also on Article 3 of Protocol No. 1 (right to free elections).

Sallusti v. Italy (no. 22350/13)

Case communicated to the parties in September 2016

The applicant, who at the relevant time was the publication director of the newspaper Libero, was sentenced to a term of imprisonment for defamation through the press and for allowing the publication of a defamatory article.

Relying on Article 10 of the Convention, Mr Sallusti alleges that his conviction amounted to a breach of his right to freedom of expression.

Darboe and Camara v. Italy (no. 5797/17)

Sadio v. Italy \(no. 3571/17\), Jahid and Others v. Italy \(no. 3610/17\), and Fofana v. Italy \(no. 3963/17\)

Cases communicated to the parties in February 2017

The applicants in these cases, with the exception of Mr Sadio, who is of full age, are unaccompanied minors who have sought asylum. They were all accommodated in the Cona (Venice) reception centre for asylum-seekers, which is intended solely for adults.

In the case of Darboe and Camara v. Italy, the applicants complain that they were placed in this facility for adults although they had stated that they were minors. They allege that the procedure for determining their age was conducted in breach of national and international law.

The applicants allege that the Cona reception centre, which has a capacity of approximately 500, was home to around 1,400 people at the relevant time. The dormitory measured 360 sq. m. and accommodated 250 people. Owing to the overcrowding, the communal areas were taken up with beds. The number of toilets was inadequate for the number of people; among other things, the occupants had to form long queues outside, even in winter, in order to have a shower. There was no supervision of the distribution of food, which was frequently insufficient to meet the demand. In addition, the space set aside for eating meals was completely taken up by the serving staff.

The applicants further claim that the centre was not supervised by law-enforcement officials, and that knives and drugs were in circulation. They also allege instances of prostitution.

Relying on Article 3 of the Convention (prohibition of inhuman or degrading treatment), Mr Sadio complains of being exposed to inhuman and degrading treatment on account of the living conditions in the Cona reception centre.

Under Article 3 of the Convention, the applicants who are minors allege that they were subjected to inhuman and degrading treatment on account of their placement in the Cona centre until 15 January 2016.

Lastly, from the standpoint of Articles 3 and 8 of the Convention, the applicant minors complain that the competent authorities failed to take any protective measures in view of their status as unaccompanied minors.

In the case of Sadio v. Italy and two other applications, the applicants lodged a request with the Court in January 2017 asking it to apply Rule 39 of the Rules of Court in order to indicate to the Italian Government that the applicants should be transferred to a reception facility for unaccompanied minors. The Court decided to adjourn examination of the Rule 39 request pending the receipt of information from the Italian Government. In February 2017 the Court found, with regard to the applicants who were minors, that the request for interim measures had become devoid of purpose as they had been transferred to centres for unaccompanied minors. In the case of Mr Sadio, it decided not to apply the interim measure requested.

In the case of Darboe and Camara v. Italy, the applicants requested the Court to apply Rule 39 of the Rules of Court with a view to their transfer to a reception facility suitable for minors. The same month, the Court granted the applicants' request and indicated to the Government that the applicants should be transferred to appropriate facilities affording living conditions compatible with the standards of domestic and international law regarding the protection of unaccompanied minors. In both these cases the Court decided, under Rule 41 of the Rules of Court, to give the applications priority treatment.
