Cases on Article 3 (prohibition of inhuman or degrading treatment)

M.N. and Others v. Belgium

05.05.2020

The case concerned a couple of Syrian nationals and their two children, who were refused the short-term visas that they had requested from the Belgian Embassy in Beirut with a view to applying for asylum in Belgium.

Application declared inadmissible.

The applicants claimed that there had been a breach of their rights under Articles 3 (prohibition of torture and inhuman or degrading treatment), 13 (right to an effective remedy) and 6 § 1 (right to a fair hearing) of the Convention.

The Court reiterated that Article 1 (obligation to respect human rights) of the Convention limited its scope to persons within the jurisdiction of the States Parties to the Convention. In the present case, it noted that the applicants were not within Belgium's jurisdiction in respect of the circumstances complained of under Articles 3 and 13 of the Convention.

The Court also considered that Article 6 § 1 of the Convention was inapplicable in the present case. The entry to Belgian territory which would have resulted from the visas being issued did not engage a "civil" right within the meaning of Article 6 § 1.

Lastly, the Court noted that this conclusion did not prejudice the endeavours being made by the States Parties to facilitate access to asylum procedures through their embassies and/or consular representations.

Rooman v. Belgium

31.01.2019

The case concerned the question of the psychiatric treatment provided to a sex offender who has been in compulsory confinement since 2004 on account of the danger that he poses and the lawfulness of his detention.

The Court held, by sixteen votes to one, that from the beginning of 2004 until August 2017, there had been a violation of Article 3, and, by fourteen votes to three, that from August 2017 until the present date there had been no violation of Article 3.

The Court also unanimously concluded that from the beginning of 2004 until August 2017, there had been a violation of Article 5 (right to liberty and security), and, by ten votes to seven, that from August 2017 until now there had been no violation of Article 5.

Paposhvili v. Belgium

13.12.2016

The case concerned an order for Mr Paposhvili's deportation to Georgia, issued together with a ban on re-entering Belgium.

Violation of Article 3 if Mr Paposhvili had been removed to Georgia without the Belgian authorities having assessed the risk faced by him in the light of the information concerning his state of health and the existence of appropriate treatment in Georgia

Violation of Article 8 (right to respect for private and family life) if Mr Paposhvili had been removed to Georgia without the Belgian authorities having assessed the impact of removal on the applicant's right to respect for his family life in view of his state of health

V.M. and Others v. Belgium (no. 60125/11)

17.11.2016

The case concerned Serbian applicants of Roma origin who alleged that they had been subjected to inhuman and degrading living conditions in Belgium that had, inter alia, caused the death of their eldest daughter. They also alleged that the order for their removal to Serbia or France under the Dublin II Regulation had exposed them to treatment contrary to Article 3.

Application struck out of the list.

The Court found that the applicants had not maintained contact with their lawyer. They had failed to keep her informed of their place of residence or to provide her with any other means of contacting them. The Court considered that it could be concluded that they had lost interest in the proceedings and no longer intended to pursue the application.

Bouyid v. Belgium

28.09.2015

The case concerned an allegation by two brothers, one of whom was a minor at the time, that two police officers had slapped them in the face while they were under the officers' control at their family's local police station in the district of Saint-Josse-ten-Noode (Brussels).

Violation of Article 3 in that they had been subjected to degrading treatment

Violation of Article 3 as the applicants had not had the benefit of an effective investigation

S.J. v. Belgium (no. 70055/10)

19.03.2015

The case concerned the threatened expulsion from Belgium of a Nigerian mother suffering from AIDS.

The Court took note of the terms of the friendly settlement and the arrangements for ensuring compliance with the undertakings given, namely the fact that the applicant and her children had been issued with residence permits granting them indefinite leave to remain. The Court further decided by a majority to lift the interim measure under Rule 39 of the Rules of Court staying execution of the order against the applicant to leave the country and to strike the case out of its list of cases.

M.S.S v. Belgium and Greece (no. 30696/09)

21.01.2011

The case concerned the expulsion of an asylum seeker to Greece by the Belgian authorities in application of the EU Dublin Regulation¹.

Violation of Article 3 by Greece both because of the applicant's detention conditions and because of his living conditions in Greece;

¹ The "Dublin" system serves to determine which European Union (EU) Member State is responsible for examining an asylum application lodged in one of the Member States by a third-country national.

The Dublin Regulation establishes the principle that only one Member State is responsible for examining an asylum application. The objective is to avoid asylum seekers from being sent from one country to another, and also to prevent abuse of the system by the submission of several applications for asylum by one person.

Violation of Article 13 (right to an effective remedy) taken together with Article 3 by Greece because of the deficiencies in the asylum procedure followed in the applicant's case

Violation of Article 3 by Belgium both because of having exposed the applicant to risks linked to the deficiencies in the asylum procedure in Greece and because of having exposed him to detention and living conditions in Greece that were in breach of Article 3

Violation of Article 13 taken together with Article 3 by Belgium because of the lack of an effective remedy against the applicant's expulsion order

Article 46 (Binding force and execution of judgments): It was incumbent on Greece, without delay, to proceed with an examination of the merits of the applicant's asylum request that met the requirements of the European Convention on Human Rights and, pending the outcome of that examination, to refrain from deporting the applicant.

See factsheet "Dublin cases".

Cases on Article 5 (right to liberty and security)

Denis and Irvine v. Belgium

01.06.2021

The case concerned two applicants who had been placed in compulsory confinement on the basis of the Social Protection Act of 9 April 1930 after having committed acts classified as theft (Mr Denis, in 2007) and attempted theft (Mr Irvine, in 2002).

No violation of Article 5 § 1 (right to liberty and security)

No violation of Article 5 § 4 (right to a speedy decision on the lawfulness of detention).

Cases on Article 6

Right to a fair hearing within a reasonable time, right of access to a court

Vegotex International S.A. v. Belgium (no. 49812/09)

03.11.2022

The case concerned a set of supplementary tax assessment proceedings, the issue of the retrospective application of new legislation, and a tax surcharge which the applicant company was ordered to pay.

No violation of Article 6 § 1 (right to a fair hearing) on account of the legislature's intervention during the proceedings

No violation of Article 6 § 1 (right of access to a court) on account of the substitution of grounds by the Court of Cassation

Violation of Article 6 § 1 (right to a fair hearing within a reasonable time) on account of the failure to comply with the reasonable-time requirement

Right to a fair trial, right to legal assistance

The case concerned the denial of legal assistance at the pre-trial stage of criminal proceedings.

Violation of Article 6 §§ 1 and 3 (c)

Right to a fair trial

Lhermitte v. Belgium

29.11.2016

The case concerned the reasons given by the Assize Court for the conviction of a mother who had killed her five children.

No violation of Article 6 § 1

Taxquet v. Belgium

16.11.2010

The case essentially concerned Mr Taxquet's complaint that his conviction for murder had been based on a guilty verdict which had not included any reasons and could not be appealed against to a body competent to hear all aspects of the case.

Violation of Article 6 § 1

Right to free elections (Article 3 of Protocol No. 1)

Mugemangango v. Belgium

10.07.2020

The case concerned a post-election dispute relating to the elections held on 25 May 2014. Before the Court, Mr Mugemangango complained about the procedure conducted by the Walloon Parliament after he had challenged the election results. He argued that the Walloon Parliament, which was the only body with the power under domestic law to decide on his complaint, had acted as both judge and party in examining it.

Violation of Article 3 of Protocol No. 1

Violation of Article 13 (right to an effective remedy)

Chamber

Cases dealing with the right to life (Article 2)

Mortier v. Belgium \(no. 78017/17\)

04.10.2022

The case concerned the death by euthanasia of the applicant's mother, without the applicant or his sister having been informed. The applicant's mother had not wished to inform her children of her euthanasia request in spite of the repeated advice from the doctors.

No violation of Article 2 on account of the legislative framework governing the pre-euthanasia acts and procedure

No violation of Article 2 on account of the conditions in which the act of euthanasia had been carried out in the case of the applicant's mother

Violation of Article 2 on account of the post-euthanasia review procedure

Violation of Article 3 as concerns the physical conditions of the applicant's detention

Trabelsi v. Belgium

04.09.2014

The case concerned the extradition, which has been effected despite the indication of an interim measure by the European Court of Human Rights (Rule 39 of the Rules of Court), of a Tunisian national from Belgium to the United States, where he is being prosecuted on charges of terrorist offences and is liable to life imprisonment.

Violation of Article 3

Violation of Article 34 (right of individual application)

Claes v. Belgium

10.01.2013

The case concerned the applicant's detention for over 15 years in a prison psychiatric wing. A court had ruled that he was not criminally responsible for his actions.

Violation of Article 3 (torture)

Violation of Article 5 §§ 1 and 4 (right to liberty and security and right to have the lawfulness of detention decided speedily)

The Court also found violations of the Convention in the cases of Dufourt v. Belgium and Swennen v. Belgium on 10 January 2013.

Singh and Others v. Belgium

02.10.2012

The case concerned a family of asylum seekers who claimed to belong to the sikh minority in Afghanistan. Their asylum application was dismissed by the Belgian authorities, which did not believe them to be Afghan nationals. They alleged that their removal to Moscow had entailed a real risk of refoulement to Afghanistan, where they would face treatment in violation of Article 3 (prohibition of inhuman or degrading treatment), and that they had not had an effective remedy before the Belgian authorities in respect of that complaint (Article 13).

Violation of Article 13 taken together with Article 3

Yoh-Ekale Mwanje v. Belgium

Right of access to a court

J.C. and Others v. Belgium
(no. 11625/17)

12.10.2021

The case raised the question of the immunity of the Holy See from the jurisdiction of domestic courts. It concerned in particular an action for compensation brought by 24 applicants against the Holy See and against a number of leaders of the Catholic Church of Belgium and Catholic associations, claiming that damage had been caused by the structurally deficient manner in which the State had dealt with the problem of sexual abuse in the Church. As the Belgian courts had found that they did not have jurisdiction in respect of the Holy See, the applicants argued that they had been deprived of access to a court and relied on Article 6 § 1 before the European Court of Human Rights.

Aarrass v. Belgium

30.09.2021

The case concerned a Belgian and Moroccan national who alleged that the Belgian State had failed to provide consular protection in order to defend him from the serious breaches of his physical and psychological integrity to which he had been subjected while imprisoned in Morocco. He relied on Articles 1 (obligation to respect human rights) and 3 (prohibition of torture and inhuman or degrading treatment) of the European Convention on Human Rights.

Application declared inadmissible.

Zschüschen v. Belgium

01.06.2017

The case concerned criminal proceedings which led to Mr Zschüschen's conviction for money laundering. He had opened an account in a Belgian bank and, within two months, paid a total of 75,000 euros (EUR) into it. Questioned by the authorities about the origin of the money, he remained silent throughout the proceedings.

Application declared inadmissible.

Muzamba Oyaw v. Belgium

04.04.2017

The case concerned the administrative detention of a Congolese national with a view to his expulsion while his partner, a Belgian national, had been pregnant.

Application declared inadmissible as manifestly ill-founded.

Bodet v. Belgium

26.01.2017

The case concerns statements made to the press by a member of the jury in an assize court following that court's conviction of Mr Bodet.

Application declared inadmissible as manifestly ill-founded.

D. and Others v. Belgium

(no. 29176/13)

08.07.2014

The case concerned the Belgian authorities' initial refusal to authorise the arrival on its national territory of a child who had been born in Ukraine from a surrogate pregnancy, as resorted to by the applicants, two Belgian nationals.

Application struck out of the Court's list of cases as concerns the Belgian authorities' refusal to issue a travel document for the child, A.. The Court also declared inadmissible the remainder of the application.

Chapman v. Belgium

05.03.2013

The case concerned a dispute between NATO and one of its former staff members concerning his contract of employment.

Application declared inadmissible: The Court, relying on its previous case-law, found that the recognition by the domestic courts of NATO's jurisdictional immunity was compatible with Article 6 § 1 of the European Convention on Human Rights. In the present case, the international organisation's internal procedure would have given sufficient safeguards for the applicant to have his complaints examined.

Simons v. Belgium

28.08.2012

The applicant complained in particular under Article 5 § 1 (right to liberty and security) that, owing to deficiencies in Belgian law, she had not been assisted by a lawyer while in police custody and during her police interview, or during her initial questioning by the investigating judge.

Application declared inadmissible - manifestly ill-founded: although the impossibility in law for accused persons placed in detention to be assisted by a lawyer from the start of their detention had a bearing on the fairness of the criminal proceedings, this did not imply that the detention in question was in breach of Article 5 § 1.

H.K. v. Belgium (no. 22738/08)

12.01.2010

The applicant is a Lebanese national and one of the suspects in a judicial investigation opened in November 1990 concerning the textile group Beaulieu. He complained of the length of the proceedings, which he considered excessive, and alleged that he had not been informed in detail in a language which he understood of the accusation against him.

Application declared inadmissible - manifestly ill-founded.

Grand Chamber

Hurbain v. Belgium (no. 57292/16)

The case concerned a civil judgment against Mr Hurbain, in his capacity as publisher of the daily newspaper Le Soir – one of Belgium’s leading French-language newspapers – ordering him to anonymise an article in its electronic archive which mentioned the full name of a driver who had been responsible for a deadly road accident in 1994. The order was based on the individual’s right to be forgotten.

Relying on Article 10 (freedom of expression), Mr Hurbain complained that he had been ordered to anonymise the archived version of an article on his newspaper’s website.

In its Chamber judgment of 22 June 2021, the Court, by a majority (6 votes to 1), held that there had been no violation of Article 10 (freedom of expression) of the European Convention.

On 11 October 2021 the Grand Chamber panel decided to refer the case to the Grand Chamber.

A Grand Chamber hearing took place on 9 March 2022

Chamber

El Aroud v. Belgium (no. 25491/18) and Soughir v. Belgium (no. 27629/18)

Application communicated to the Government on 5 November 2018

The applications concern the removal of the applicants’ Belgian nationality following their conviction for acts related to terrorism.

Relying mainly on Article 2 of Protocol No. 7 to the Convention, the two applicants complain that they were deprived of two levels of jurisdiction relating to the decision to strip them of their citizenship.

Malika El Aroud v. Belgium (no. 25491/18) and Bilal Soughir v. Belgium (no. 27629/18)

Applications communicated to the Belgian Government on 5 November 2018

These applications concern a Moroccan national and a Tunisian national. They both acquired Belgian nationality by declaration. They were convicted by the Belgian criminal courts in 2010 and 2008, respectively, for acts related to terrorism. The applicants were deprived of their Belgian nationality by separate judgments of 30 November 2017 of the Brussels Court of Appeal on the basis of Article 23 of the Belgian Nationality Code. Having regard to the wording of Article 23 § 6 of the Belgian Nationality Code, the first applicant did not appeal to the Court of Cassation. The second applicant has taken steps in this direction, in particular by obtaining legal aid, but these have not been successful.

Relying on Article 2 of Protocol No. 7 to the Convention, both applicants complain that they have been denied the right to appeal against the decision to deprive them of their nationality. Relying on Article 8 of the Convention, the applicants submit that the revocation of their nationality infringes their right to respect for private and family life.

Al-Shujaa and Others v. Belgium (application no. 52208/22 and 142 others)

16.12.2022

Interim measure decisions taken on 13 December 2022

The applicants, who are in Belgium and have no accommodation, complain that they have not been allocated places in the reception system by the Federal Agency for the Reception of Asylum Seekers (Fedasil) in accordance with the Law of 12 January 2007 (“the 2007 Act”).

The Court decided to indicate an interim measure to the Belgian State in respect of 143 adult male applicants who had obtained a final domestic decision from the Brussels Labour Court.

The Court decided to reject the requests for interim measures of those applicants (adults or unaccompanied minors) who had not obtained a final domestic decision. There are 57 such applicants.

Msallem and 147 Others v. Belgium (no. 48987/22 and 147 others)

16.11.2022

Interim measure applied on 15 November 2022

The case concerns the applicants (adult males), who have applied to the Belgian authorities for international protection and have not been assigned accommodation on account of the alleged saturation of the network for receiving asylum-seekers in Belgium. The applicants have all obtained a final domestic decision from the Brussels

Labour Court ordering the Federal Agency for the Reception of Asylum-Seekers (Fedasil) to provide them with accommodation and material assistance in accordance with the Law of 12 January 2007.

Camara v. Belgium (no. 49255/22)

02.11.2022

Interim measure applied on 31 October 2022

The case concerns a Guinean national who applied to the Belgian authorities for international protection on 15 July 2022. Since then he has lived on the street, not having been assigned a place in a reception facility by the Federal Agency for the Reception of Asylum-Seekers (Fedasil) on account of the alleged saturation of the network for receiving asylum-seekers in Belgium.
